U.S. Surplus May Go Near Billion Mark

WASHINGTON (AP)-The government next week will announce a fiscal 1960 budget surplus closer to one billion dollars than to the 200 million dollars President Eisenhower forecast in January, government sources reported

Revenues have run higher and federal outlays somewhat lower than the figures sent to Congress in Eisenhower's budget message. Those were $78,600,000,000 in revenues and $78,400,000,000 in outlays for the fiscal year that ended

Therefore, despite earlier official predictions that the 1959 steel strike might throw the budget into red ink, the administration will turn in its third balanced budget in seven years.

Officials in recent months have been gradually revising upward their guessing on the surplus. Informants said it now appears that the surplus will be between threefourths of a billion and a billion dollars.

An almost-final tally will become available in the Treasury's statement of operations for June. This is due about the middle of next week.

There has been speculation however that Eisenhower himself might announce the figures beforehand in a special statement. The complete accounting will not be ready until about October.

The rising incomes of Americans resulted in unexpectedly heavy individual income tax payments to boost the fiscal 1960 revenues. Personal income is expected to continue to rise this year and should help the administration meet its goal of a $4,300,000,-000 surplus in the new fiscal year which started July 1.

In This Hour Of Crisis

There were times during the oratory of the Democratic convention when a listener back east wondered if the Los Angeles fog might not be eroding the spirit of the party.

Never has there been more dooming and glooming Every speaker had something ominous to say about conditions "in this hour of crisis." They referred to the forthcoming election as the crossroad, a turning point in history, an hour of decision.

The United States had come to the end of the road. It was scraping the bottom of the barrel. Things were so bad there was no way to go but up.

THIS WAS the usual oratory that can be expected from the party out of power when it is trying to become the party in power. But in the circumstances of 1960, it was not the oratory that could be expected. In 1960 the Democrats control Congress. They have fully half the power.

They have had a chance to make their own record and apparently have made a failure, by their own appraisal. Their speeches at their convention left that impression.

This inconsistency is pointed out not as an indictment of Democrats, or of their convention orators, but as evidence that political oratory is overdue for reform

In a few more days, Republican speakers will be ringing the changes on their 1960 theme, which will be that conditions in the United States were never better and are improving: that international relations would be placed if other countries would see things the same way and that the status quo should be preserved because it is eminently satis-

This will disregard the fact that lopsided Democratic majority in Congress is part of the status quo

It will minimize the fact that international relations will not be placid unless it suits international communism to make them placid

It will ignore the seamy side of reality as studiously as the Democratic orators ignored it when they cried "Wolf!" to test their

And it too will be the usual oratory that can be expected from the party in power when it is defending its record-though in fact Republicans have only the White House, while Democrats control Congress. Neither party is in power or out of power. They are sharing power.

IF THEIR SPEAKERS dared to be honest with themselves and their listeners, there would be a cessation of the oratory associated with old-style partisanship.

It is out of touch with the times. It is as offensive to the ear and intellect of listeners as the fulminations of southern-fried spellbinders who wave the bloody shirt and threaten to secede from the Democratic party if it guarantees civil rights for Negroes. This is 1960, not 1860.

Confidence in two-party government should reach a climax in convention years. It hits bottom, instead.

The orators destroy it. They make fools of themselves by trying to make fools of their listeners.

They ignore the progress of a free society in which people know more about the realities of their existence than their political spokes-

They are like men-and women-who have stood still in the era of William Jennings Bryan while the world moved on.

HAVING RESISTED the invitation to throw in the towel because all was lost, according to the Democrats, and being certain they can resist the invitation to believe all is perfect when Republicans start speaking, millions of American voters wish their dignity would be respected by their fellow citizens who speak at national party conventions.

We are not that dumb, gentlemen. Quit

The Decision Is Not Khrushchev's

Nikita Khrushchev, as the world's No. 1 dictator and current high priest of Communist dogma, is so accustomed to telling others what the facts of life are at that he often gets carried away with his own importance.

An example is his declaration that the Monroe Doctrine is dead

He has his facts wrong. The Monroe Doctrine is an Amercan policy. Americans, not Russians, will decide when it is dead.

It is true the original concept of the Monroe Doctrine as a United States policy has changed in character. There came a time when the use of the Doctrine as a Big Stick to make all of Latin American a so of special province of the United States was unpopular with our southern neighbors and therefore unrealistic.

So it has been converted into a multilateral policy, representing the thinking of the entire hemispere. The change came gradually, but it is now signed and sealed in three specific agreements and in the existence of the Organization of American States.

In regard to communism in particular, the Monroe Doctrine was reiterated in 1954 in Caracas, when the American states agreed that they would help each other resist the inroads of international communism in the Western Hemisphere.

This is what Nikita Khrushchev should keep in mind. The Monroe Doctrine is very much alive and may well be kicking strenuously if Mr. K and his friend Fidel Castro

That, in a few words, aptly describes the busy career of Mrs. May Morley Bryan, who died here Thursday after a lengthy illness.

Many were the worthwhile services which she performed for the community - in Girl Scout work, during fund campaigns and in church circles. Probably more than anything. however, she will be remembered for her many contributions to the Girl Scout movement. Bryan Recreation Center stands as a lasting monument to her memory.

Too often those who give of their time and energy to deserving causes are not recognized for their true worth until after death. Fortunately, this was not so in Mrs. Bryan's case. # A Tale Of Unhappy Conductors

Not since the "Great Train Robbery" has there been a script as stirring as the saga of the struck Long Island Railroad. It is the tale ofunhappy c o n d u ctors. some of whom earn over $15,-They are illtempered, despite the great green fresh ness through whichthey the management of the world's busiest commuter line whimsically believes it has the right to decide how to run a railroad without asking the locals' permission.

that under an old contract the railroad's executives must get up all new schedules and train assignments 15 days in advance of the effective change.

Then the schedule is sent over to the Trainmen's local headquarters for approval. The General Council of the Brotherhood of Trainmen of the Long Island Railroad has five days to veto management's decisions.

And the council, led by a young, ambitious fellow named Harold Pryor, who spits fire like a Casey Jones' locomotive, does veto.

The manning chart is gone over by the leaders of the conductors, trainmen and yardmen. They are the only Brotherhood Council in America which has the right to dismiss management's schedules for the running of trains.

THE COUNCIL leaders - seven or eight in all-treasure this right, for it is a treasure indeed. The choice runs go to the senior men. They're the ones who earn $15,000 annually and will be taking home $16,000 next year.

The average pay for conductors and ticket takers will be over $8,000 next year.

The best runs are those which give a man one, possibly two, round trips in the morning rush hours. Then the on-train employe "lays over." He is on his own until the evening home-going crowds push aboard. This gives him considerable free time during the late morning and early after-

It's not free time, however, for the railroad. The Long Island pays for that lay over time. Thus the line pays many of its 1350 trainmen for a full 13 or 14 hours, though sometimes five or at most six hours are worked.

Now what the road wants is to reschedule the trips so that a man will work eight hours and get paid for eight hours and not for the useless lay over time.

I say useless. Not really useless to some of the trainmen. They pick up some extra money at other jobs during their lay over time. In addition, they are the only trainmen in the country who get a $700 anual cost-of-living bonus. Thus the striking railroaderswho do not have the blessing of their national Brotherhood leaders -earn more than the working girls and guys they haul each day while ever-increasing rates eat into their

No other Brotherhood locals have this veto power. For example the Boston and Maine Railroad has just rescheduled its manning charts so it gets eight hours' work for eight hours' pay. The men weren't happy. But they recognized management's right to

Two Kinds Of Fish

By James Marlow

ohn F Kennedy for president and Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson for vice president fries a couple of kinds of fish, political and personal

For years Johnson, 51, has shown signs of aching for the presidential nomination. Therefore, seeing it go this week to Kennedy, eight years his junior, must have been a shattering blow.

The fact that Johnson, at Kennedy's request, would accept the No. 2 spot on the ticket looks bewildering at first glance. It makes sense when you lift the lid on this strange political pot and look in-

Johnson, as Senate leader of the Democrats, for years has had one of the most important and powerful jobs in the country. What he wanted was the most powerful job of all, the presidency.

Compared with either one of them, the vice presidency is a shadowy situation.

A vice president traditionally simply presides over the Senate. votes only to break tie votes on the floor, and runs errands for the president.

Johnson, whose Senate term is up this year, without question could be re-elected by Texas and retain his Senate leadership. He still is expected to run for the Senate as well as the vice presi-

But this happens to be a touchy year in the national political

The South, as it showed at the Democratic convention, was restive and balky over the very liberal civil rights platform plan shoved down its throat by the rest of the convention delegates.

There was a good chance the South in next November's elections would be a lot less than wholehearted in its support of the Democratic ticket headed by Ken-

By getting Johnson to run with him, Kennedy went a long way toward pacifying the South, which is where Johnson had his main backing in his unsuccessful bid for the presidential nomination. So from a political standpoint it makes sense to put Johnson on the ticket as Kennedy's running But there's a personal element in this. Washington newsmen who have dealt with Johnson for years know he has a gigantic ego. This is precisely why Kennedy's victory over him must have cut the Texan deeply It would hardly seem sensible for a man, dressed in the tremendous robes of power worn by a Senate leader, to give up that job for the comparatively less influential post of vice president.

about the nice things said of him over the years, could feel particularly honored if the voters chose him for a job just one heartbeat away from the presidency.

There is more. Johnson, a tremendous manipulator of men, could use the vice presidency in a way not attempted by others who have held that job. He could try to hold the reins of power in the Senate even though someone else succeeded to his present title as Democratic leader

That's one point. As vice president he would not only sit in the president's Cabinet but also be a member of the National Security Council, the most influential and powerful single group in the executive branch of the government.

Thus Johnson, as vice president, could be a powerhouse in both the legislative and executive branches of the government to a degree never before attempted, even by Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Knowing Johnson, it seems correct to say that while he has been denied a chance at the most powerful single position in the country, the presidency, he would use the vice presidency in such a way that he would be indisputably the second most powerful man.

There is one other consideration in all this. A Kennedy-Johnson ticket will have a two-edged appeal to voters next November Liberals and intellectuals, labor and Negroes, will be able to support a ticket headed by Kennedy. Conservatives can feel that the conservative Johnson, even though he has a fairly liberal record himself, will be a restraining force within the government if the Democrats win.

Kennedy Clique Ran Democrat Convention

LOS ANGELES Sen. John F. Kennedy has taken the plunge, he has heartily endorsed the most radical and divisive platform the Democrats have ever adopted

It means the loss of electoral votes in the South but the Massachusetts senator is confident of offsetting this with votes in the north-

This convention has come to a sad climax. It didn't nominate Adlai Stevenson, the true disciple of New Dealism and so-called "liberalism.

It didn't nominate Lyndon Johnson, the apostle of safe and sane liberalism It gave no thought really, as a convention, to any basic principles but obeyed the dictates of a small clique, hand-picked by Sen. Kennedy, to write the platform and steamroller the convention. Nothing could have been more discouraging to the American people to watch than the real spectacle of what has been going on inside the convention. They couldn't, of course, see this on the television screen. But the indifference of the delegates - the bored look, for instance, on the faces of many of them as vital principles of public policy were being presented in the majority re-was very revealing. IT TOLD a story of the utter failure of the convention system to reflect the wishes of the people on the issues of the day.

port of the platform committee -

Sen. Kennedy's nomination was a foregone conclusion long before this convention assembled. This writer observed the signs many months ago as he learned of the efficiently political way the Kennedy apparatus - well-financed and well-organized - was selecting delegates and using local influences on the political front to make all kinds of promises to win delegate support

This is not the manner in which the American people should be choosing their presidential candi-

A platform, for instance, is supposed to be an expression of party thought. Yet, as the chairman was reading the ponderous phrases, the delegates were busy talking among themselves or moving around the convention floor

Frank Sinatra, the movie star, came along and began shaking hands with some California delegates as the ever-present photographers gathered around him. The celebrities of the Hollywood screen were very much in evi-Sideshows seemed to interest the delegates more than the main

> The galleries booed the Southerners as their leaders tried to tell the convention that they may be making it hard for the Democratic national ticket to carry the South this time.

SEN. ERVIN of North Carolina, formerly a justice of the State Supreme Court, told the delegates that to adopt the majority's plank was to run counter what a majority of the Senate, including a majority of the Democrats, had three times voted down in the last few James Gray of Georgia, Governors Hollings of South Carolina. Barnett of Mississippi and Almond of Virginia, and Sen. Holland of Florida made eloquent speeches.

They were in dead earnest as they pleaded with the delegates for dispassionate consideration. But all this fell on deaf ears.

The audience seemed cold and adamant. For the convention was being steamrollered on the party's platform just as on the selection of a candidate.

There wasn't even a record vote. The chairman took it for granted that, despite the loud shouts of the "noes," the "ayes" were a bit louder and that this meant a majority wanted to adopt the platform as presented by Chester Bowles, chairman of the resolutions committee.

Incidentally, if any Democratic party speakers in the coming campaign refer disparagingly to "Madison Avenue technique," they can do so only with a sense of guilt for Mr. Bowles dramatically used movie film, with pictures of Red Chinese and Russians, to illustrate a point in the platform-how strong the enemy is getting to be. He displayed pictures, too, to emphasize points on "civil rights."

IT ALL ADDED UP to a show which interested the delegates a little more than the platform

All in all, it was a disappointing affair. What should have been a real debate on party policy was just a routine presentation.

Maybe a national convention isn't the place for debate on serious subjects. But some day the American people will ask: "Why hold a convention if it isn't to articulate the wishes of the voter? Why talk about civil rights when a platform is adopted that would deprive people on every side of their civil rights in the field of employment and private school education?

As one apologist who spoke for the majority report put it, a platform is only a "blueprint" and it "only for four years."

But Sen. Kennedy now has endorsed it. Does that mean he will work to carry it out or will he see its pitfalls and evade what the platform proposes?

If so, it will be added proof that it is permissible to promise everything at a national convention and when elected, to give little.

Thus does a convention nominate a candidate the party really doesn't prefer to the other possible choices and thus does a convention adopt a platform which pledges the party to do everything better than the predecessor administraion did but never indicates how.

The Platform and the nominee. in effect, promise perfection. That's what makes party politics today the essence of hypocrisy.

House Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas, who urged Johnson not to take second place, shook his head and sighed a little sadly at the outcome which was formally ratified by the Democratic convention Thursday night

Rayburn's explanation was that Johnson had been offered the spot and replied in simple language that he couldn't reject any demand for service his party or his country laid upon him. Johnson himself offered no enlightening explanation

Whatever his motives, by the introduction of Johnson's name on the ticket Kennedy appeared to have softened a movement to deny him the vote of several Southern states in the Electoral Col-

Tonight's formal acceptance cermonies take the form of a big show with its Hollywood stars and premiere lights, its thundering thousands of spectators and its nation-spanning coverage by television, radio and the newspapers.

Johnson has been a target for Americans for Democratic Action, the liberal appendage of the party. He has been criticized by Chairman Butler for ignoring the recommendations of the Democratic Advisory Council.

Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan, a preconvention supporter of Kennedy, said his delegation feels the nomination of Johnson was a mistake.

Robert R. Nathan, head of the District of Columbia delegation and an ADA leader, wanted to put up the name of Gov. Orville L Freeman of Minnesota to oppose Johnson in a floor vote. But Freeman scotched that California and Wisconsin delegates complained about the choice of Johnson, but the convention wasn't in a mood to challenge any request Kennedy made. Johnson's nomination was gaveled through without any formal vote in a session which found delegates staying away in droves.

old tiny Texan with a hot putter as a prime weapon goes gunning today for a place in the finals of the 30th annual Women's Trans-Mississippi Golf Tournament and a possible championship.

But Sandra Haynie, the Austin, Tex., high school senior who stands only five-feet, three-inches tall, faces a huge task.

The three other golfing gals remaining for semifinal play are veterans of big time competition even though two of them are young enough to have played and finished one-two in this year's National Intercollegiate.

Joining Miss Haynie in the semifinals were JoAnne Gunderson of Kirkland, Wash.; Judy Eller of Old Hickory, Tenn., and Mrs. Jason Weiss of Indianapolis.

Mrs. Weiss was runnerup for the Women's Western in 1954, for the National Amateur in 1955 and was a member of the 1956 Curtis Cup team

Mrs. Gunderson was National Amateur champ in 1957. She played on the 1958 and 1960 Curtis Cup teams and beat Miss Eller in the finals of this year's National Intercollegiate.

Miss Eller won the intercollegiate crown last year and played Returns $107 on this year's Curtis Cup team.

Nothing is so unattractive to a man as a discarded woman who gets on her knees and begs for a crumb of affection. This is the one sure way to extinguish any small spark that may be smoldering in the ashes.

A couple "nearing 60" who found "comfort, companionship, and happiness together" doesn't wait three years to marry - if the feeling is mutual.

Stop seeing this man at once and make new friends. It's your only chance to salvage some self respect and to make a new life.
